COMMENTS:

Purpose. This bill is sponsored by the California Council of the Blind. According to the author, "Highly trained guide dogs are vital companions for people who are blind or visually impaired. They partner with a guide dog to help them move about safely and independently. This bill seeks to improve services for those who partner with guide dogs by making a number of reforms to the Board that oversees licensing of the service dogs, which is called the state Board of Guide Dogs for the Blind. The proposed reforms include a requirement to increase representation in board membership of persons who use guide dogs, as well as provisions to improve outreach and educational efforts to make the public more aware of the board's functions and services. The bill also allows an out-of-state school to provide limited follow-up services in California, if the school provided the original training to the California resident and dog, is certified by the International Guide Dog Federation and notifies the state Guide Dog Board that they are providing follow-up services in California. The bill authorizes the Board to refuse any personnel who have committed certain violations of law and gives the board full disciplinary authority to act if a consumer is negatively impacted by an out-of-state school providing such services. To date, there has never been an adverse incident of follow-up care by an out of state school. California is the only state in the nation that requires mandatory licensing of guide dog schools and instructors. Out-of-state guide dogs schools throughout the nation receive certification by the International Guide Dog Federation."

Background. The Board. The Board was established in January 1, 1948 for the specific purpose of providing well-trained guide dogs to blind persons and training blind persons as guide dog consumers. The Board licenses: 1) guide dog schools; 2) guide dog instructors; and, 3) fundraising programs to open new guide dog schools. The Board inspects all schools, requires new active guide dog instructors to take a legally defensible written and practical examination, and requires instructors to submit proof of eight hours of continuing education each year to remain licensed.

Business and Professions Code Section (BPC) 7200(a) specifies that the composition of the Board is to include seven members, all of whom are appointed by the Governor. One appointee must be the Director of Rehabilitation or his designated representative and the remaining members must include persons who have shown an interest in dealing with persons who are blind or visually impaired; two of which must be blind or visually impaired persons who use guide dogs. The author notes that the Board's current composition does not include an adequate representation of the two consumer advocacy groups whose missions are to help blind individuals gain full independence and equality. In order to address this issue, this bill will change the composition of the Board to require at least three members, instead of two, who represent the legally blind or visually impaired community.

Out of State Follow-up Services. California is the only state to license and regulate guide dog instructors and guide dog schools. As such, there may be instances when a California resident will seek guide dog training services from an unlicensed school outside of California. There are a limited number of guide dog schools across the country, and while three are licensed in California, there are a few schools outside of the state that have chosen not to obtain California licensure. The issue arises when a California resident who obtained training from one of those out-of-state schools seeks to obtain follow-up instruction from the unlicensed school or instructor who provided the original services outside of California. Current law does not prohibit California-based residents from obtaining services from unlicensed schools or instructors outside of California. Currently, as noted on the Board's Web site, follow-up services or formal instruction with a client is prohibited in California without a license.

During the Board's 2013 sunset review, the 2013 Committee Staff Background Paper raised the issue of unlicensed instructors from outside of California providing follow-up services in California and noted, "Because California is the only state that regulates guide dog schools, instructors, and fundraisers, some out-of-state guide dog schools and instructors who do not have the ability to get licenses in their home states have expressed concern that they are unable to provide guide dog training services in California without applying for a California license. The Board has clarified through regulations that "instruction," which can only be conducted by a licensed provider, includes follow-up instruction."

This bill seeks to create a pathway for those out-of-state schools and their personnel to provide follow-up services in California to individuals with respect to the specific guide dog for whom the training or instruction was initially provided outside of California. In order to provide those follow-up services, the unlicensed personnel must abide by the protocols established by this bill.

In order for an unlicensed individual to provide the follow-up services, this bill will require the school to notify the Board no less than three days from the time the personnel arrive in California, and will allow the Board to refuse to allow the follow-up services if the personnel has violated BPC 7211.9 which includes, but is not limited to, making false statements or giving false information for a license or renewal, violating any rule of the Board, committing any acts which are grounds for denial, or being convicted of a felony or any other crime, as specified.

This bill will only permit those unlicensed school personnel to provide follow-up services if the school is certified by the International Guide Dog Federation or a successor agency. This bill also provides a mechanism for follow-up services to be provided on an emergency basis. This bill does not permit unlicensed guide dog training services to be provided in California in any other situation. In addition, this bill will require that the unlicensed personnel who are providing the follow-up services submit their fingerprints to the Board and be subject to the disciplinary jurisdiction of the Board, which may include a citation or fine.

Currently, the Board's Web site provides information for consumers including reference material about licensees, consumer notifications, laws, link to a complaint form, Board member information, Board meeting schedule, and press releases, among others. The author notes that guide dog handlers are often unaware of the Board, and those who do, are unclear about its purpose. In order to address the concern raised by the author, this bill will also require the Board to create a fact sheet and make it available on its Web site containing information about the purposes of the Board, its role in assisting guide dog users who are victims of alleged guide dog discrimination, and arbitration procedures relating to the resolution of disputes between guide dog users and guide dog schools relating to the continued physical custody and use of a guide dog. The Board is supposed to provide a copy of this fact sheet to each licensed school, and the schools will be required to provide the fact sheet to each student.
