Docket No. APHIS-2011-0003
Regulatory Analysis and Development

Re: Comments on Docket No. APHIS-2011-0003, Proposed Rule

Gentlemen:

This comment is based on my personal experience and addresses the stated rationale for the proposed Rule:

“APHIS is proposing to revise its definition of “retail pet store” to close a loophole that has in some cases threatened the health of pets sold sight unseen over the Internet and via phone- and mail-based businesses. Under the current definition of “retail pet store,” which was developed over 40 years ago and predates the Internet, some breeders selling pets are taking advantage of a loophole that improperly exempts them from meeting the basic requirements of the Animal Welfare Act (AWA). The proposed rule will close this loophole, ensuring that animals sold over the Internet and via phone- and mail-based businesses are better monitored for their overall health and humane treatment.”

Forty-five years ago in the summer of 1967, between my junior and senior years of college I had been unable to locate a Rottweiler puppy in Northern California. In those times, the Rottweiler was still a rare breed in the United States. I had hoped to have the puppy settled in when the fall semester began and able to start obedience classes some time during my school year. I turned to an Illinois breeder who advertised in the dog magazines that were sold to the public from newsstands. After an exchange of letters only, the puppy was shipped from O'Hare to San Francisco on July 17, 1967.

Long distance, sight-unseen sales were common and customary contemporaneous with enactment of the Animal Welfare Act and adoption of its regulations. To state otherwise is not true. To further illustrate this historic reality, I attach the following exhibits from the August, 1968 issue of Dog World, a popular dog magazine still in publication.

Exhibit 1 – Dog World, August, 1968 cover, listing feature articles including “Inquiries from Prospects” by renowned Keeshond breeder, Virginia Ruttkay, a knowledgeable, regular columnist.

Exhibit 2 – Dog World, August, 1968, pages 104 and 112 with Mrs. Ruttkay's article on pages from the breeder display ads portion of the magazine, running from page 41 to page 117 in this issue. In hindsight, this article shows the time consuming work of breeders in responding to inquiries ranging from serious requests for a specific puppy to general questions from the public. At that time, the only communications methods for individuals were letters, hand or typewritten, or expensive long distance phone calls.

Exhibit 3 – Dog World, August 1968, pages 118 and 145, the first and last pages respectively of the Classified Advertisement section.

Exhibit 4 – Dog World, August 1968, page 59, the Rottweiler page. In the upper right-hand corner was the ad from Rodsden from which I had bought my puppy the previous year. They were known to be reputable without need for inspection of the two different family homes or those of other breeders they worked with at different times over the years.

Exhibit 5 – copy of the manila envelope attached to my puppy's shipping crate, dated 7/17/67. I had never then, or later visited Illinois or any of the premises where my puppy had been. This was not unusual in that time when AWA was new and communications tools almost primitive compared to the technological advances since that enable breeders and buyers to exchange far more information inexpensively and quickly to facilitate long distance transactions.

It has always been possible to “drop ship” merchandise from remote locations unknown to the retail buyer -- historically by print advertising whether in hard copy or now facilitated by internet communication, publication or use of e-commerce tools. A buyer using search and investigative features of the internet today can far more easily determine facts today than when AWA was enacted.

Accordingly, the stated need to “revise the definition of “retail pet store” to close a loophole that has in some cases threatened the health of pets sold sight unseen over the Internet and via phone- and mail-based businesses” would be rulemaking based on false premises – whether disingenuous lack of research or intentional deception instigated for other purposes. The public expects and will demand that a regulatory agency exercise its discretion based on substantiated facts, particularly when attempting to regulate a multi-sectored market where buyers themselves expect and demand adaptation of emerging technologies to facilitate both inquiries and transactions.

Thus, I respectfully ask rejection of this proposed rule.

Very truly yours,

SHARON ANITA COLEMAN

Breeding to Shih Tzu Type

By MARY L. WOOD

Successful dog breeding requires an eye for a dog, some knowledge of heredity and genetics, and good common sense. An apt eye for an animal is often a gift but may be acquired by studying the type of dog which distinguishes himself consistently in the show ring. One should attend shows, read DOG WORLD Magazine, and study photographs of renowned Shih Tzu. I, personally, have collected photos of dogs that were winners in England, on the Continent and in the U.S.A., and this collection contains photos of dogs of all ages and types. These have been of great use when searching for a suitable male for my bitches.

If you are a new comer to the breed and have no easy access to shows or photos, there is another way—seek the advice of someone handler, Wendell J. Sammet, after winning the Miscellaneous Class at the Philadelphia

knowledgeable in the breed, who has produced some of the good ones.

It is more important to breed for the good points rather than breed to avoid faults. The perfect dog simply does not exist, nor does the perfectly matched pair but this does not prevent your going to the best-suited stud dog for your female. Which, then, is the best-suited mate for your bitch? Obviously it will be one that does not display the same faults as your female. If your female has a weak head, look for a dog with a really good head and, if possible, one whose parents have good heads also; but if, to achieve this, you have to choose a dog slightly cow-hocked or loose-shouldered, it is worth taking the chance providing the bitch is sound in this respect. You may get puppies in the litter displaying the faults of both parents but, with any luck, you should get at least two out of five with most of the more-desired virtues.

Inquiries from "Prospects"

By VIRGINIA RUTTKAY

How should battle lines be drawn, in the "cold war" between prospects and breeders? What is reasonable procedure on the part of the inquirer? And on the kennels' side?

Maybe we should start by defining an inquiry: To me, it's a request for information about one's pups for sale, or stud service. (A letter asking advice about an already-purchased dog is not an "inquiry"—and an answer depends on the charitable nature of the recipients—AND/OR the volume of such letters a successful breeder receives). It's "dirty pool" to write a five-page letter, crammed with questions about kennel management (often of another breed entirely!) stating, "You advertise 'ALL INQUIRIES ANSWERED!'" The "carrot-on-the-stick", is a technique that all breeders have met. ("I'm thinking of breeding to your famous Champion Whatsis—MEANWHILE . . .") Have moral courage enough to say, "Please give me advice about such-and-such." If you want a favor, say so. A busy fancier is much more likely to give his time, when approached honestly.

When you write, be sure to specify what you want, why you want it, and give a bit of your background. (Dogs are not machines.)

ery—a "strictly business" type of letter, might "scare off" the breeder. He is interested in the pup's happiness and you should be, too.)

We receive many inquiries for our "non-cash" arrangements. The urgency of such requests always surprises me. The motivation should NOT be saving money. It should be wanting the RIGHT start, with the best possible dog. The burden is all on the breeder. A mistake in judgment means headaches—for the dog, as well as for himself. Naturally, he'd rather take his time and get acquainted with the person who wants this boon. But what happens? If such a "freebie" deal is not instantly forthcoming, the prospect goes elsewhere . . . if you can't invest money, the LEAST you can invest is time. If a total stranger will spend a few months' time, phoning occasionally or dropping in (for a SHORT while!) if local—or writing a "remember me, I'm still waiting" type of note, the breeder's confidence would be won, and results obtained. Promises, schommises! Anyone who has bred dogs for any length of time knows how much promises mean. So, if you want a big break, be patient. Convince the kennel owner that you are sincere.

AMER.-CAN. CH. RAINES ECHOS

We are flooded with now, now, NOW types. But a steady, stick-with-it kind is hard to find—and is valued! If you have something to offer, in hard work, persistence, sincerity, the dedicated breeder wants to work with you. But don't try to storm the barricade with a lot of big promises. Too many fanciers have been "stung" too often. A bargain is not a bargain unless both sides benefit. Convincing a person of your sincerity will take time—so don't try to rush matters.

If your inquiry is not answered, try again. Too many breeders seem careless in this respect. Their days are full, and experience has shown them that a very small percentage of the letters they write are answered. So if you repeat your inquiry you will probably get an answer—keep it short. Ask a few questions—don't ramble. And don't ask for pictures and pedigrees, "right off the bat"—they take time and rarely are returned. (Later on, the breeder may volunteer them).

As in everything else, "There are two sides to every story". If you try to do your best as an inquirer, you will stand a good chance of getting the response you want.

DOG WORLD HAS THE ENVIED DISTINCTION OF CARRYING MORE PAID CLASSIFIED ADVERTISING THAN ANY OTHER MAGAZINE IN ANY FIELD, THROUGHOUT THE ENTIRE WORLD.

BREED RATES—30c per word per issue for ONE or TWO insertions.
25c per word per issue, 3 OR MORE consecutive insertions ordered in advance.
25c per word per issue, 12 consecutive insertions (1 YEAR), ordered in advance (by year).
MINIMUM ad 20 words. Fewer words charged as 20.
For example, a 30-word ad costs $9.00 for one insertion, $25.20 for 3 consecutive insertions (at $8.40 each time) and only $90.00 for a year (all consecutive insertions), or $7.50 each issue.

NO CHARGE ACCOUNTS: CLASSIFIED ADS ARE PAYABLE IN ADVANCE. Remit by check, currency or money order.

Street numbers, letters AKC, registration numbers, initials of name, or price figures each count as only one word. Thus AKC 1409 would count only 2 words. J. B. Smith, 1916 Canal St. $75.00, would count as 6 words. See chart in this section.

Copy can be CHANGED at any time and any increase or decrease in number of words paid for accordingly.

No stud fee less than $50.00 or sale price less than $75.00 can be specifically stated. However, advertiser can sell at any price he wishes.

See last pages for rates on GENERAL—PRODUCTS, MISCELLANEOUS ITEMS, PERSONNEL SECTION, ETC., FOR NON-BREED ADVERTISING.

We reserve the right reasonably to edit and classify all copy; also to decline or discontinue any advertisement which we clearly consider objectionable. All orders accepted are subject to these conditions. No dealer's prices, wholesale, litter lots, etc., accepted in copy of classified ads.

Closing date for ads is the 17th of the second preceding month—for instance ads received to and including May 17th are inserted in July issue. Issue will be out on the 20th or shortly thereafter.....

Classified ads received after the 17th will be placed in our Too Late To Classify column unless otherwise specified.

You can run as many classified ads as you wish in one issue, all at the same rate, (in the breed section) and under various classifications.

Remember—"The more you tell the more you sell." "To sell, you must tell."

DOG WORLD carries each month approximately TWO times as much paid classified advertising as ALL OTHER all-breeds monthly dog publications in America combined. All state and geographical area ads are grouped in sequence.

Many of our advertisers are using the ZIP code. To distinguish the zip code from telephone numbers we insert the code in parenthesis.

Rottweiler Ear Carriage

Rottweilers with faulty carriage of the ears lose a great deal in character and expression. In many cases it is possible for the owner to minimize the fault if not entirely eradicate it. But he must not be short of patience and persistence, because it cannot be done overnight. The Rottweiler's ears should be as follows: Ears are comparatively small, set widely apart from each other and at such a height that when the ears are placed well forward, the upper part of the head seems broader. Faults: Ears which are placed too low, too high; which are heavy, too long, floppy, rose-eared, or stick out, or are irregularly carried.

The carriage of the puppy's ears deserves particular attention for in changing his teeth he easily becomes accustomed to laying back his ears. If we do not take measures in time, the bad habit will remain and we shall have a dog which forfeits much of his appearance. Dogs with light and very small ears are particularly inclined to do this, whereas one rarely needs to do anything in the case of those with heavy or fleshy ears. Let us have a closer look at the ear of a puppy, which is badly carried, particularly the inner side. We find that a fold has formed, and this must now be removed by constant massage. This is done as follows: one makes the dog sit down in front of one, pushes the index finger into the opening of the ear and with the ear between the index finger and the thumb, massages it gently but persistently with the thumb. One begins at the junction between the ear and the head and massages towards the extremities. In so doing one can carefully knead the ear in order to promote the circulation. If one proceeds in this way several times a day for a few minutes, success will follow in the majority of cases. One must not lose patience, however, even when it takes rather longer for the faulty carriage to begin to disappear. The younger the dog, the more favorable are the prospects of success. The animals very soon take pleasure in the procedure and keep quite still, for during these minutes master or mistress is devoting his or her full attention to the dog. One should be willing to take the trouble in order to provide oneself with a better appearance. But one must always be mindful of the need to avoid any pulling, twisting or careless handling of the ears.—(Reprinted from "English Rottweiler Newsletter.")

WESTMINSTER JUDGES

Mr. Robert A. Kerns will judge the Working Group. The breed judges are:

Mr. Len Carey, Malamutes, Danes, Sams and Sib. Huskies; Melbourne T. L. Downing, Malinois, Tervuren, Old English and Belgian Sheepdogs; Robert Waters, Bouviers, Briards, Bullmastiffs, Rottweilers; A. Peter Knoop, Boxers; Ralph E. Morrison, Collies; Mrs. Theodore Beckhardt, Ger. Shepherds; Mrs. Mary Nelson Stephenson, Giant and Standard Schnauzers; Paul T. Haskell, Pyrenees, Newfoundlands and Dobes; Dale McMackin, Shelties; G. Stanley Logan, Cardigan and Pembroke Welsh Corgis; Langdon L. Skarda all other Working Breeds.

... Do not try to remove foreign substances from your dog's coat with turpentine or kerosene. These cause a painful burn. To heal the skin apply any vegetable cooking oil, or petroleum jelly.
